Thanksgiving Through the (Brownsville) Times

By Mikayle Stole, Editor

Before social media, small-town newspapers like The Brownsville Times were the heartbeat of community connection. If you wanted to know who was in town for Thanksgiving, who went to Salem to visit family, or who roasted a turkey big enough to feed half of Crawfordsville, you didn't scroll — you read the paper.

From the early 1900s through the 1980s, The Brownsville Times' holiday editions read like a warm, handwritten group chat: neighbors naming names, families sharing meals, and local correspondents filling the pages with news from Halsey, Shedd, Crawfordsville, and Brownsville. Here's a look back at how our readers "posted" about Thanksgiving long before Facebook.

In 1900, The Times reported on young men "sowing wild oats" and spending time in the county jail — an early reminder that not every headline was about turkey and warm apple pie.

Bernie Sloan and John Bem, two of our enterprising (?) young men, will spend some time in the county jail at Albany. They have been sowing what is commonly called "wild oats."

By 1925, the paper was full of "society" notes. Entire columns listed who dined where: "Mr. and Mrs. Morris King and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Holmes spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Damon." Dozens of such mentions appeared, each one an invitation into the lives of neighbors.

During the 1940s, as World War II filled the front pages, families gathered for dinner while sons and daughters served overseas. In 1943, one Brownsville mother received word that her son, 2nd Lt. Gordon L. Childers, was missing in action in Europe. A year later, a Brownsville Times-sponsored ad urged readers to "Back up the Boys — Buy Another Bond," promoting a local war bond auction at the high school gym.

Ram Trucking Carries on a Christmas Tradition from Brownsville to Kansas City

By Jeff Brown, Staff Writer

BROWNSVILLE — Each holiday season, a little bit of Brownsville spirit travels more than 1,800 miles to Kansas, thanks to Ram Trucking. For more than four decades, a 100-foot Christmas tree has been carefully harvested, packed, and transported to the Hallmark Corporation, continuing a unique seasonal tradition that began in the early 1980s.

The tradition began with Dale Middlestadt, who worked for Willamette Industries. Middlestadt was involved in arranging the delivery of the massive tree each year, ensuring it arrived safely at its destination for Hallmark's holiday display. When he later joined Ram Trucking, the company took up the tradition, keeping the long-standing connection alive.

The process of moving such a massive tree is a feat of planning and precision. According to Katie Cox of Ram Trucking, the tree is so large that it must be divided into two loads: one truck carries the trunk, while another hauls the boughs. Once both trucks reach Kansas, the pieces are reassembled on site, transforming back into the towering evergreen centerpiece that greets visitors at Crown Center in Kansas City during the holiday season.

While many people may not realize it, this small-town Oregon company plays a key role in spreading holiday cheer across the country. The project not only showcases the skill and care of Ram Trucking's drivers and staff but also highlights the community pride that runs deep in Brownsville.

This year, the tradition continues. The trucks and the towering tree have already left Brownsville. They are on their way to Kansas City, where the tree will stand proudly at Hallmark's Crown Center and will be officially lit at the annual tree-lighting ceremony on Friday, Nov. 28, at 6 p.m. 🌲

Jenna's Move

By Daniel R. Murphy, Staff Writer

BROWNSVILLE — For the past four years, Jenna Stutsman has operated her real estate business out of her office on Spaulding Ave. in Brownsville. Last June, Jenna had the opportunity to buy an office space across the street, previously occupied by LB Productions, a video production business. Her new address is 128 Spaulding. The video business has closed its doors, allowing Jenna actually to own her business property rather than rent.

Jenna's husband, Lawrence, has cleaned up the premises and installed a new ceiling and bathroom. They polished the concrete floor, giving the space a whole new, light, and bright look. She moved into her new business location the first week of November, and I expect it to look polished and ready for customers now.

Joe Glow has already moved into her old space. More details coming soon.

Lots of exciting new shifts and changes are happening in downtown Brownsville these days. 🍂

Courtney Creek Artisan Market Returns to Brownsville Woods

Handmade goods, antiques, and a tradition revived
The Courtney Creek Artisan Market will return this holiday season, reopening one of Brownsville’s best-known seasonal traditions. The event runs Nov. 28 through Dec. 6, open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 36744 Courtney Creek Drive.

Visitors will find curated goods, antiques, fine art, Pacific Northwest gourmet foods, fresh wreaths, and bakery items, with Sisters’ Coffee served on site. Vendors are hand-selected by Toombs, and travel from across the region — from Portland to Eugene and as far east as John Day. The market was first established in 1996 by local artist and maker Kimberly Toombs and attracts people from all over to Brownsville. What started as a small garage sale of hand-crafted items quickly expanded after a visit from Brownsville resident Ed Lafayette.

“At my very first sale, just down the road from the schoolhouse, my neighbor, Ed Lafayette, stopped by,” Toombs said. “He was sitting there enjoying coffee, cookies, and homemade bread when he told me, almost casually, that I should move my next event to the old schoolhouse he’d just finished restoring up the road.”

Lafayette had recently completed a major renovation of the 1926-27 Courtney Creek Schoolhouse, preserving the structure’s original woodwork and large classroom windows. The building soon became the permanent home of the twice-a-year market, which combined antiques, artisan crafts, and gourmet foods — a format uncommon at the time.

The show drew crowds from across Oregon and became a post-Thanksgiving destination for many families. It continued until 2006, when Toombs and her three sons moved out of the area. After nearly two decades away, Toombs revived the market in 2024 with the partnership of her son, Kyle Carlson, and daughter-in-law, Michelle.

This year’s event again takes place at the Courtney Creek Schoolhouse, nestled among the evergreens southeast of Brownsville. Toombs said the family’s goal is to keep the focus on local craftsmanship and community connections. “We want people to feel the same sense of place and tradition that made the market special the first time,” she said. BROWNSVILLE WOMEN'S STUDY CLUB

Bid on Sharing Hands' Tree: 'A Village Christmas'

By Mandy Cole,
Staff Writer

An expert with 15 years of decorating trees for Brownsville's Festival of Trees, Wendy Parker can hardly wait to get her hands on the Sharing Hands entry. Her theme is "A Village Christmas." "I've been thinking about this all year," she says.

Wendy's 2022 tree for Sharing Hands.

Wendy likes to start decorating as early as she can; with the tree set up at Reflections Salon on Main Street, Wendy and her faithful cheerleader, Lynn Heller, haul in all the decorations and begin work. "I have some of the best decorations this year: a quilt panel with whimsical houses, pink velvet pillows, nutcrackers, and beautiful ribbon. I even found a glass cookie jar house with a pink roof at Barbara Andersen's garage sale."

What's Wendy's secret to a high-bidding tree? "I make sure I add something special to draw people in," she says. Wendy's sister, Paula Thompson, a retired art teacher, always adds a touch of flair. "This year, Paula has spray-painted tiny tart tins, creating vignettes with jewelry and miniature objects." Dear friend Leslie Lewis, who designed Jerome the Gnome for the (Gnome for the Holidays tree), will also contribute special touches to this year's masterpiece.

"I love the Festival of Trees," says Wendy, "It's a joyous event. I'm so grateful we have the Brownsville Times back to help us spread the word about community events. It's been hard without the paper."

With such a long decorating track record, Wendy remembers some of her favorite trees: "Fa La La Lama," "Celebrate Me Home," and "Buffalo Check," and, of course, the Gnome tree.

Christmas is a special time for Wendy and her family. "I decorate the house, and we watch nostalgic movies with Jimmy Stewart and Bing Crosby. And this is the first Christmas for my first grandson, Truett," she says.

You can bid on the Sharing Hands tree "A Village Christmas" at Reflections Salon on Main St., Dec. 5-6. 🌟

Linn County Voters Approve Public Safety Levy

LINN COUNTY — Voters approved Measure 22-212 on Nov. 4, renewing the county's four-year law-enforcement levy. As of Nov. 7, unofficial results show 52.54 percent in favor (15,620 yes to 14,111 no).

The levy raises the rate from $2.98 to $3.08 per $1,000 of assessed value and will replace the current levy when it expires June 30, 2026, taking effect July 1, 2026 through June 30, 2030.

Funds support the Sheriff's Office, District Attorney's Office and Juvenile Department; LCSO says levy dollars fund about 74 percent of its 195 authorized positions and roughly half of its overall resources.

Services covered include 24/7 patrol, the jail, prosecution, juvenile supervision, emergency management and Search & Rescue. 🌟

TANGENT TOGETHER

Growing Together: 2026 Tangent Harvest Festival Sponsorships Now Open!

It takes a lot of hands and a little horsepower to make the Tangent Harvest Festival the community favorite it's become. From laughter in the Kids' Village to the roar of the Combine Derby, none of it would happen without our incredible sponsors, who help keep the spirit of "Community. It's just who we are" alive and thriving.

As we look ahead to the 2026 festival, we're proud to announce our returning Premier Sponsors: Linn-West, Papé, Western Packaging, and Complete Ag. These businesses continue to plant deep roots of support right here in Tangent, and we couldn't be more grateful for their commitment.

Now it's your turn to join the team! Sponsorships for the 2026 Tangent Harvest Festival are open, and we're seeking community-minded partners ready to grow with us. Whether you're a local business, farm, or service provider, there's a sponsorship level to fit your goals — and to help keep this beloved celebration going strong.

Let's make 2026 our biggest and best harvest yet! For more information about becoming a sponsor, contact Sponsorship Director Marcy Hermens at tangentharvestfestival@gmail.com.

2025 Tangent Harvest Festival By the Numbers:

- 7 combines
- 68 car show entries
- 6 Quilts of Valor presented
- 2,000+ attendees
- 88 volunteers
- 32 tractors
- 57 vendors
- 51 sponsors

The 2025 festival was one for the books — and the numbers tell the story. From combines to community, every smile, volunteer, and ticket made a difference. 🌟

On the morning of November 8, Dan George and Jack Sayer posted American Flags in honor of Veterans Day throughout Brownsville.

By the 1950s, hometown ads were reminding readers, “Your friends all know where you live — invite them to visit!” Thanksgiving columns from 1953 read much the same as those decades before, full of names, connections, and a whole lot of turkey.

The 1960s ushered in The Times’ “community correspondents” era. Reporters like Lyla Sullivan in Brownsville, Robert Carey in Halsey, and E. H. Margason in Shedd. Each week, they chronicled family dinners, out-of-town guests, and “pleasant visits” in columns that stretched for pages. One 1962 entry even mentioned two international students — David Kanzethe and Hezrah Kuria — joining a Brownsville Thanksgiving table.

The same issue included a fourth-grade report from Mr. Koontz’s classroom, where students made “Wanted: Dead or Alive” posters to learn descriptive writing, studied division, and crafted “Thanksgiving art turkeys” out of pipe cleaners and paper cups — “even looking palatable in some cases.”

‘Mr. Turkey’ and What Happened to Him

We are working, this week, on books about a Turkey named “Mr. T. Turkey”.

He meets a little Bluebird who laughs at him because his coat is so many colors and tells him to dye himself blue. So, the Turkey does.

Then, he meets a little yellow Chick who laughs at him for being blue; and tells him to dye himself yellow! So, the Turkey does.

This keeps happening as the Turkey meets a red Hen, a green Snake, an orange Duck, a black Lamb, a violet Parakeet, and a white Kitten.

Finally, he meets a little old man and a little old lady . . . who take him home with them -- and make him a color that will please everybody!

We read the story together; and then we draw pictures to go with each section of the story.

By 1972, Shedd’s first-graders were reading a story called “Mr. Turkey and What Happened to Him,” about a bird who kept changing his colors to fit in — until he met “a little old man and lady who made him a color that pleased everybody.”

And by 1989, The Times was still publishing the voices of local children, this time in verse. Crawfordville students submitted Thanksgiving poems celebrating “cousins laughing, pumpkin baking, relatives coming, and making stuffing.”

For more than a century, The Brownsville Times has recorded how our community gathers — one meal, one visit, one line at a time. In every era, these Thanksgiving notes remind us that connection, kindness, and family have always been worth reporting. ☼

Crawfordville Students Submit Thanksgiving Poems

The third and fourth graders at Crawfordville School gave some thought to the Thanksgiving holiday last week, and expressed their thought in rhyme. Some of these will evoke memories of the recent occasion for all of us.

Thanksgiving
The smell of turkey is great,
Family putting food on their plate.
Everyone is as happy as can be,
Thanksgiving is a fun thing for me.
—By Maria Whitten

Thanksgiving
Look up real quick!
Cousins laughing
pumpkin baking relatives coming making stuffing
cooking and walking baking and talking fast and faster all around come quick
don't forget.
— By Wendy Miller

Thanksgiving
Thanksgiving is here
With the Thanksgiving joy
That is like the dew on the ground,
With the turkey and the pies in the oven.
Thanksgiving is here.
With you and I.
—By America A. Sayer

Seeing Grandma
Seeing Grandma on Thanksgiving
Is like going to the ocean!
To see the cousins talking.
It's fun to hear them running,
To hear the wind
go Swish, shash, swish, shash
And then, the turkey comes out
And I'm gone.
—By Sara D. Fortune

Turkey
Turkey's on the table,
Turkey on your plate,
Turkey's in your stomach,
Boy, was that great!

UNIVERSE UNFOLDED

A Son of Sputnik

By Jim Isenberg, Staff Writer

When Sputnik launched in October 1957, I was six years old, listening to the steady “bleeps” of the Russian satellite on the radio. News commentators warned that the Soviets might soon drop bombs from space, but I was wondering something else: how could a metal ball circle the Earth every 90 minutes? And might it hit the moon?

My local library in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania, didn’t have much on orbital motion, but I was hooked. That curiosity about space led me to physics, and I’ve never really stopped asking questions about how the universe works.

I studied at Princeton University from 1969 to 1973, working with physicists John Wheeler, James York, and Jim Peebles on Einstein’s theory of general relativity. After graduating, I continued my studies at the University of Maryland, joining a small, lively relativity group. During those years, I co-authored eight papers on general relativity and astrophysics and wrote my dissertation on Einstein’s “initial value problem.” Outside the classroom, I ran marathons, about six a year, with my best time being 2:34 at Boston.

Postdoctoral positions followed at the University of Waterloo in Canada and the University of California, Berkeley. Though research postdocs aren’t supposed to enjoy teaching, I did. That led me to the University of Oregon, where I joined the mathematics faculty in 1982. Over the next four decades, I taught, mentored, and continued research in gravitational physics with National Science Foundation support almost every year through 2023. I’ve published 160 papers and co-authored six books, traveling to 18 countries to collaborate and lecture.

I moved to Brownsville in 1992 and soon fell in love with the community — and with life on a small farm raising sheep, goats, and chickens. A 2017 spinal cord injury now limits my mobility, but my wife, Pauline, and I still own our Brownsville property, which kind neighbors help maintain. We hope to return for visits soon.

Nearly 70 years after Sputnik, my fascination with astrophysics and cosmology remains as strong as ever. I’ve also discovered that sharing what we’ve learned can be just as satisfying as the research itself.

That’s why I’m launching this quarterly science column for readers of The Brownsville Times. Each issue, I’ll explore one of the big questions that has kept me curious for a lifetime:

- What are black holes?
- What are gravitational waves, and what do they reveal?
- What is the future of the universe — and of our own sun?

If you’re curious too, I’d love to hear from you. Send your questions or ideas to isenberg@uoregon.edu.

After more than 40 years as a University of Oregon professor — and an equally long run as a devoted Duck fan — I’m still happiest when exploring how the cosmos works and sharing that wonder with others. ☼

James Isenberg, University of Oregon professor emeritus in mathematics and physics and member of the Institute for Fundamental Science.

Planning Commission Vacancy

The City of Brownsville is seeking a new member to serve on the Planning Commission. This volunteer board helps guide the city’s growth and advises the City Council on land-use policy and related issues. Meetings are typically held on Monday evenings at 7 p.m. in Fisher Hall at City Hall, 255 N. Main St.

Community members interested in contributing to Brownsville’s future are encouraged to complete an application at <https://www.ci.brownsville.or.us/bc-pc>. Applications must be received by 4 p.m. on November 17. Current commissioners include Gary Compton, Don Andrews, Rob Wingren, Jack Alzman, Steve Schilling, Barbara Andersen, and Jared Swezey. ☼

TABLE TALK: DINING IN AND AROUND BROWNSVILLE

Cascade Grill Offers Reliable Comfort Food and Service

By Jeff Brown, Staff Writer

Cascade Grill in Albany has built a reputation for consistent meals and attentive service. Conveniently located at 110 Opal Ct SE, right off I-5, it has become a steady stop for both locals and travelers.

On a visit this summer, our waiter, Conner, handled the table with ease. He has worked at Cascade Grill for more than six years, and his experience showed. Drinks arrived quickly, followed by a basket of fresh bread with butter. Warm, soft, and flavorful, it was a welcome start to the meal.

I ordered a cup of the mushroom soup, made in-house like all of Cascade's soups. It was rich, savory, and well-seasoned — one of the best mushroom soups I've had. For the main course, I chose the Prime Rib Stroganoff. The dish came with tender beef strips over penne noodles in a creamy sauce. It was hearty without being heavy. My wife selected the Southwest Chicken Salad, which combined well-cooked chicken with crisp greens and a bit of spice. Both meals arrived promptly and were served at the right temperature.

The dining room was clean, cool, and comfortable — important on a day when the thermometer outside read 99 degrees. The atmosphere is casual yet well-kept, making it easy to settle in for a meal.

Cascade Grill's menu sticks to American standards: steaks, burgers, salads, seafood, and pasta. Portions are generous, prices are reasonable, and service is consistently friendly. While the food is not trendy or experimental, it is dependable and well prepared.

The restaurant serves breakfast, lunch, and dinner, making it a flexible choice for different schedules. Its location just off the freeway makes it convenient for road travelers looking for a sit-down meal rather than fast food.

Overall, Cascade Grill delivers exactly what it promises: good food, prompt service, and a comfortable place to eat. For more information or reservations, the restaurant can be reached at 541-926-3388. ☎

THANKSGIVING FAVORITES FROM OUR READERS

Peanut Butter Marshmallow Bars

A reader who wants to remain unnamed, shared this simple, no-bake recipe for chewy bars, noting it was "The only thing my aunt ever made that was worth eating." The recipe combines peanut butter, marshmallows, and roasted peanuts into a rich treat that requires no oven and is ready in about two hours.

Yields: About 24 bars

Ingredients

- 1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk
- 1 (10-ounce) package peanut butter chips
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 (10-ounce) bag mini marshmallows
- 1 (16-ounce) jar dry roasted peanuts

Instructions

1. Line a 9-by-13-inch pan with waxed paper, leaving an overhang on the sides. In a large bowl, combine the marshmallows and peanuts.
2. In a separate large, microwave-safe bowl, combine the sweetened condensed milk, peanut butter chips and butter. Microwave in 30-second intervals, stirring between each, until the chips are melted and the mixture is smooth. Do not overheat.
3. Pour the melted mixture over the marshmallows and peanuts. Stir until everything is evenly coated, then spread the mixture into the prepared pan, pressing it down firmly.
4. Refrigerate for at least 1 hour, or until firm. Use the waxed paper overhang to lift the bars from the pan before cutting into pieces.

For variety, butterscotch, chocolate or other flavored chips may be substituted for the peanut butter chips. ☎

Mom's Peanut Butter Pie

A peanut lover's dream from Anne Clarke

Makes one 9-inch pie

- 9-inch graham cracker crust
- 1 pkg (8-oz) softened cream cheese
- 1 cup powdered sugar
- ½ cup peanut butter
- ½ cup milk
- 8-oz container of frozen whipped topping, thawed
- ¼ cup peanuts, chopped

Beat cream cheese until fluffy. Mix in powdered sugar and peanut butter. Slowly add milk, mixing well. Fold in whipped topping. Pour into crust. Sprinkle with nuts. Freeze until firm.

Option: Serve with chocolate or whipped topping. ☎

Commissioners OK Siting Accessory Dwelling Units

By Alex Paul, Linn County Communications Officer

ALBANY — Rural Linn County residents will soon be allowed to site Accessory Dwelling Units on their properties if they meet state and county requirements, Linn County Commissioners Roger Nyquist and Sherrie Sprenger agreed at their November 4 meeting.

After a brief regular meeting, the commissioners reconvened a Public Hearing that began at their October 28 meeting. At that time, the commissioners agreed to accept written public comments about the issue until 5 p.m. on Monday, November 3.

The Planning & Building Department received three written comments and the commissioners accepted them into the record.

One comment concerned why the county proposed a two-acre minimum instead of a one-acre minimum property size, another focused on why the ADU would need to be placed within 100 feet of the main home, and the third comment was that ADUs larger than 900 square feet should be allowed.

Planning Manager Alyssa Boles said the county is following the state's Oregon Revised Statutes on all three issues.

Commissioners Nyquist and Sprenger approved the Code Text Amendments and the order will come back for signatures at a later meeting. The Code Text Amendments will take effect 21 days after signing.

In other business, the commissioners:

- Approved the transfer of $75,000 within the General Fund from Materials and Services to Personal Services.
- Approved the purchase of a Falcon Asphalt Hot Box from SealMaster for $82,076.18. The unit holds asphalt at the proper temperature while crews are repairing potholes.
- Talked about Stahlbush Island Farms donating five truckloads of food to Linn-Benton Food Share last week in response to the shutdown of the federal government and SNAP (Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program) benefits. Commissioner Nyquist said the donation will provide up to one million servings. Ryan McCambridge, director of Linn-Benton Food Share, also provided the commissioners with a written update about food distribution activity for the first nine months of the year and recent food donations.
- Announced the Board of Commissioners will not meet on November 11 due to the Veterans Day holiday. Linn County buildings, except the Sheriff's Office, will be closed that day.
- Were asked by Roxie Putman to contact Republic Services to see if a yard debris pick-up program can be developed for rural Albany area residents.
- Announced that a management staff meeting will be held at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, November 5, in the courthouse basement meeting room. ☼

Flat Earth Herbs Celebrating One Year in Brownsville

By Jeff Brown, Staff Writer

Flat Earth Herbs marked its first anniversary in its current location on October 4, and owner Rege Rippee says it has been a year of learning, connection, and growth. What began as a dream to offer natural remedies and herbal knowledge has become a small but meaningful hub for the Brownsville community.

"I want this store to be a service to the community," Rippee said. "And, sometimes, people just need to talk." Before opening her shop, she spent years selling her products at the Eugene Saturday Market, Picc-A-Dilly flea market, and other local festivals and craft fairs. "It began in 2012. The more I learned about herbs and natural remedies, the more I wanted to share," she said.

The shop's name, Flat Earth Herbs, came from Rippee's instinct for something "catchy and interesting." Shelves are lined with a selection of herbs, teas, aromatherapy products, essential oils, spices, and other handmade crafts — many of which she makes herself. Listening to her customers helps her decide what to stock in the store. Among local favorites is her 911 Butter, a topical blend used to help manage inflammation. "That has been my biggest seller since 2017," she said.

Running a small business has come with challenges, like finding the right schedule and learning the rhythms of seasonal local foot traffic. "When someone steps inside and feels welcome, great conversations happen," she said. "That builds trust and a true sense of community."

Rippee is active in the Brownsville Chamber of Commerce and occasionally volunteers for and donates to local charitable events. She's also working on her next project — a class on making colloidal silver — and expanding her online store at Flat Earth Herbs.

"I'm grateful for everyone who has supported me," Rippee said. "I will continue helping people in the best way I can."

Flat Earth Herbs is located at 240 N Main St., in downtown Brownsville. For hours, upcoming classes, and product updates, visit the shop, sign up for the newsletter, or follow Flat Earth Herbs on <https://www.facebook.com/profile.php?id=61563679990533>. ☼

CRITTER CHRONICLES

Bernadette the Clumsy St. Bernard

By Sharon Banks, Staff Writer

As told to Sharon Banks by Charlotte Bates.

When I was a teenager, my brother and his wife came home for a visit with their giant, goofy Saint Bernard named Bernadette. She was lovable but an absolute klutz.

One afternoon, Mom and Bernadette were playing tag in the backyard. Unfortunately for Mom, Bernadette could run a lot faster. The game ended in a spectacular collision, sending Mom into an accidental somersault across the grass. I'm not sure who looked more surprised — Mom or Bernadette!

Once we made sure no one was hurt, we all burst out laughing. I still wish I'd had a movie camera that day — watching it in slow motion would've been priceless.

Tangent’s Elle Glaser
Finalist in National
CattleCon Anthem Contest

TANGENT — Elle Glaser, a fourth-generation farmer from Tangent, has been named a finalist in the 13th annual National Anthem Contest hosted by the National Cattlemen’s Beef Association. The winner will perform “The Star-Spangled Banner” at the Opening General Session of CattleCon 2026 in Nashville, Tennessee.

Glaser, who grew up showing cattle, co-owns Triple G Cattle Company with her sisters, where they focus on improving the genetics of their breeding stock and producing high-quality show cattle and locker beef.

The public can vote for Glaser once per day through Nov. 15 at <https://convention.ncba.org/apply/national-anthem-contest/national-anthem-contest-vote-now>.

Watch Elle’s performance at <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=av2BWwfyXkc&t=3s>.

The winner will be announced on Nov. 21. 🌟

Triple Your Impact: Pacific
Power to Match Donations to Oregon Energy Fund

Pacific Power is making it easier for local families to stay warm this winter. For every dollar donated to the Oregon Energy Fund, Pacific Power will contribute $2 more, tripling the impact of your gift.

Customers receiving paper bills will find a contribution envelope enclosed in November. Those who pay electronically can donate by check, phone at 1-888-221-7070, or online at <https://www.pacificpower.net/Donate>.

Participants can contribute any amount, starting at $1 per month, with all donations supporting families in their own county. Last year, contributions from Pacific Power’s customers, employees, and the company helped 2,859 Oregonians, including seniors, children, and people with disabilities.

Pacific Power will match donations up to $144,000 this year.

Those needing assistance with their electric bill can also call 1-888-221-7070 to explore payment plans and local aid options. 🌟

National Flood
Insurance Program
Paused During Federal Government Shutdown

The Oregon Division of Financial Regulation (DFR) warns Oregonians that the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) has been paused because of the ongoing federal government shut-down. Congressional approval for the program has expired, impacting homeowners trying to renew coverage and those in the process of purchasing property in flood-prone areas.

During the shutdown, NFIP cannot issue new policies or renew existing ones until Congress reauthorizes the program. However, current policies remain in effect until their expiration dates. Claims may still be processed, but delays could occur if funds run out.

The delay might also slow down home sales, especially for buyers in high-risk flood zones who need flood insurance for federally backed loans. DFR advises that some private insurance companies could offer flood coverage during the suspension.

Oregonians are advised to verify their policy status, contact their insurance and real estate agents, and consider private flood insurance options if needed.

“While we hope Congress acts quickly to restart the NFIP, this reminds us how important it is to be prepared for flooding and to understand your insurance options,” said TK Keen, Oregon’s acting insurance commissioner.

For assistance or questions, contact DFR’s consumer advocates at 888-877-4894 or email dfr.insurancehelp@dcbs.oregon.gov. More information can be found at <https://floodsmart.gov>.

SNAP Yes? SNAP No?

By Anne Clarke, Staff Writer

Every morning, I check the latest updates on federal SNAP benefits. I check again at midday and again in the evening, after all the talk show hosts and politicians have gone home — or wherever they go these days.

And every day, the reports change. One headline says, “The government is shut down; there will be no benefits.” Another reads, “Federal judge orders benefits restored.” Then, just as we start to hope, Trump posts one of his 4 a.m. messages insisting that “benefits will not be restored until Democrats agree to our Republican agenda on healthcare subsidies.” Later, his staff softens it with an announcement: “We’re working on it.”

Meanwhile, hungry lines of people formed outside food pantries across the country on November 1. Many woke up, checked their EBT accounts, and found them empty. The Portland Food Bank Director said she’d never seen lines that long on the first of the month — they usually appear only when accounts are running low.

By Monday, reports and rumors were flying. One judge ordered partial payments. Another said funds weren’t available. Yesterday, we heard that full benefits would be paid, but at this point, no one knows what to believe.

So people stopped waiting. Coffee stands handed out grilled cheese sandwiches to cars full of children. Neighbors placed boxes of food on their porches for others to take. Restaurants served hot meals to anyone who showed a SNAP card. Across the country, and right here at home, ordinary people did what our government couldn’t seem to manage: they cared.

Our own Sharing Hands Food Bank in Brownsville continues to serve anyone who shows up on food distribution days — Wednesdays and Fridays from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. No questions asked, just a name, ZIP code, and the number of people in your household.

In October alone, Sharing Hands helped more than 290 families. Forty-eight families were served this past Wednesday. As the holidays approach, we’re once again seeking donations — frozen turkeys, stuffing, gravy mix, sweet potatoes, dinner rolls, and all the other fixings that make Thanksgiving feel like home.

Food donations are accepted any day the Food Bank is open.

Holiday hours:

Wednesday, Nov. 26 — 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Wednesday, Dec. 24 — 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Wednesday, Dec. 31 — 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Closed Fridays, Nov. 28, Dec. 26, and Jan. 1.

The Thrift Store will follow the same schedule.

My heart is warmed by the stories I’ve heard — of neighbors helping neighbors, of strangers stepping up, of our small towns doing what they’ve always done best: taking care of one another. ☺

CLES Food Drive for Sharing Hands until Nov. 20

Central Linn Elementary is hosting its first annual food drive to support local families in need, and we need your help! We’re collecting nonperishable food items to donate to Sharing Hands.

Please check expiration dates before donating; only items within their shelf life can be accepted. Whether it’s canned goods, pasta, or boxed meals, every contribution helps make the holidays brighter.

To add a little fun, the class that collects the most food (by weight) will win a pizza or ice cream party! Thank you for demonstrating kindness and teamwork this season. ☺

Food For Fabric at Yankee Dutch Quilting until Nov. 15

Earn fabric and discounts while helping those in our community! Yankee Dutch Quilting is collecting donations for Sharing Hands Food Bank, which is currently seeing high demand and long lines for assistance.

Here’s how it works:

- 1 Fat Quarter for one of the following: Instant stuffing, instant potatoes, canned cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes, pumpkin pie filling, evaporated milk, or a gallon of milk.
- 2 Fat Quarters for one of the following: A 5-pound (or larger) bag of potatoes or sweet potatoes, a package of Hawaiian rolls, or a dozen eggs.
- 3 Fat Quarters for one of the following combos:
 - Green Bean Casserole Combo: A can of French-sliced green beans, cream of mushroom soup, and fried onions.
 - Birthday Cake Combo: One box of instant cake mix with a can of frosting.

- 4 Fat Quarters for one turkey, minimum of 10 pounds.

Yankee Dutch will have a selection of fat quarters cut and ready to hand off to donors, set aside from their regular inventory — batiks, flannels, and printed cottons! Shoppers will also receive coupons toward purchases from the regular inventory.

In other words, they’re bribing you to bring good food! Please make sure the donated food is not expired and is good for at least three months.

Stop by during event week to drop off your items and earn your fabric rewards — or to support a good cause. Every donation helps make the holidays brighter for local families.

Hours: Tuesday–Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. (541) 466-3662. 140 Spaulding Ave., Brownsville.

Feel free to share with your quilting friends and help fill the shelves at Sharing Hands! ☺

KIDS' KORNER

Frogs, Toads, Lizards, and Salamanders

By Nancy Diltz, Staff Writer

A small lizard was walking on my driveway one evening — Halloween evening, to be exact. Many trick-or-treaters had passed by the little guy, and no one noticed him until a boy called me outside to see “a lizard.” When I saw it, I thought it was unlike any lizard I had ever seen before. It was about the size of my pinkie finger, so maybe it was a baby. I picked it up. It was slimy! Perhaps it was a salamander? It had a bright reddish-orange belly. Maybe it was a poison dart frog? No! It had a long, curly tail. Maybe it was a tadpole? Probably not.

I placed it safely in the grass, and when I went inside, I looked up the types of lizards in our area, hoping to identify it. I couldn’t find any pictures or descriptions on any website that would help me identify this little reptile in my yard. My search, however, revealed some fascinating facts about lizards.

Did you know that the Mexican Bearded Lizard is thought to survive on only three meals a year? Some lizard species never drink water. Only one lizard species can swim: the Marine Galápagos lizard, which scrapes algae off rocks with its teeth! They can hold their breath for over an hour underwater. There are 7,100 types of lizards found worldwide. There are also over 700 kinds of salamanders. No wonder I had trouble figuring out which unique little creature visited my house on Halloween. Maybe it was wearing a costume? If you’re interested in reptiles, you can learn more from the book “Frogs, Toads, Lizards, and Salamanders” (1990) by Nancy Winslow Parker and Joan Richards Wright. It’s available at the Brownsville Library.

Lizard Craft Activity:

On a paper plate, draw the outline of a lizard. Collect leaves or moss and glue them onto the lizard shape. Draw eyes and a reptile tongue. What kind of lizard did you create?

Editor’s note

Nancy’s “lizard” was most likely a rough-skinned newt. These newts are named for their dry, bumpy skin — most other salamanders have smooth, moist skin. Adult newts have a brown head and back with a bright orange belly and can grow up to nearly eight inches long.

These newts carry a potent neurological toxin in their skin and eggs to ward off predators. When threatened, they release a milky white substance from their skin glands. Avoid touching your face or mouth after handling a rough-skinned newt.

Rough-skinned newt at Brice Creek near Cottage Grove. https://commons.wikimedia.org/wiki/File:Rough-skinned_newt.jpg

During the non-breeding season, adult newts live in forested areas along the coast and into the Cascade foothills, often hiding under soft logs. In spring and fall, they may be seen crossing roads as they migrate between forests and breeding ponds.

Learn more about rough-skinned newts from the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife: visit <https://myodfw.com/wildlife-viewing/species/rough-skinned-newt>.

AMERICAN LEGION

Moving On

By an ordinary seaman

If anything is certain, it's that no story is ever over, for the one we think is finished is only a chapter in a tale that will not be. The game is not done, but it is a long day with more innings than any man can count. We know this at Travis Moothart Post 184, where the calendar turns us over like a plow working a long field near the Calapooia.

A week or two ago, we had the Haunted House, where the terror was cheap and simple, and we were glad for the clean, shocked screams of the young and the delightful, startled yelp of that old gentleman who wandered through. It was a vacation from being ourselves, a pure moment of fear and laughter. But what you do, which is what you are, only has meaning in relation to other people, so we moved on.

We paraded into the Veteran's Day breakfast, which is one of those times that reminds you that if you could not accept the past and its burden, there would be no future. We honored the men and women who carried that weight, the cost of which you might see in their eyes. But you have to make the good out of the bad, because that is all you have got to make it out of.

And now, here we are, facing the Festival of Trees. We will be preparing the trees for the tree artists, turning raw wood into a stage for beauty, a kind of necessary work that binds us to the community. We're the men who understand that you can only make the future out of the past, even if the work now means getting a little sap on our hands and a little weight around the middle from the Study Club's wonderful baking.

Left to Right: Sharon Banks, Jeff Brown, Norm Simms, Carl Frank, and Jim Weger

If you're a veteran, then you understand the past is always with us, but the direction of your feet must be forward. Stop by the Post most week-day mornings or call Jim Weger at 541-619-8976. ☎

OHA to Increase Medicaid Payments and Improve Healthcare Access Across Oregon

SALEM — The Oregon Health Authority (OHA) will increase payments to Oregon Health Plan (OHP) insurers, known as coordinated care organizations (CCOs), by an average of 10.2 percent per person in 2026 to help stabilize the state's Medicaid system. The move comes as health care costs, service utilization, and financial pressures on insurers continue to rise across the state.

More than 1.4 million Oregonians including low-income adults, children, older adults, and people with disabilities depend on OHP for coverage. The new rates aim to maintain access to care and protect provider networks while OHA works to manage long-term expenses.

"We're investing more now to protect the stability of our Medicaid system, but that means we must also be disciplined about controlling future costs," said OHA Director Sejal Hathi, M.D., M.B.A. "Our focus is on safeguarding access to care today while keeping the program strong for years to come."

OHA data show that Oregon's 16 CCOs collectively had a nearly break-even year in 2024, reporting an average net operating income of about $ 129,000 — a margin of just 0.001 percent. Spending per member increased by over 10 percent between 2023 and 2024, and through mid-2025, the statewide margin was only 0.02 percent.

To balance higher payments, OHA is planning several cost-control measures. These include adjusting behavioral health funding, reducing bonuses through the CCO Quality Incentive Program, and narrowing eligibility for enhanced behavioral health payments to team-based care providers — a change that may take effect on Jan. 1, 2026, pending federal approval.

One notable local change affects Lane County, where PacificSource Health Plans will not renew its CCO contract for 2026. Trillium Community Health Plan, which currently serves about 36,000 people in the county, is expected to expand coverage to approximately 92,000 OHP members who are now enrolled with PacificSource. OHA is negotiating with PacificSource to continue service through Feb. 1, 2026, providing more than 90 days for a smooth transition. Members will receive notices and guidance from OHA and PacificSource in the coming weeks.

OHA will host forums in November and December to inform OHP members, providers, and community partners about these updates. Final 2026 rates are expected to be confirmed later this year. ☎

BROWNSVILLE LIBRARY

Stories, Decorations, and Books Galore

By Sherri Lemhouse, Brownsville Librarian

Each Friday, we host Story Time and More from 11a.m. to noon. Join us on Friday, November 21, for a special Story Time and help us make decorations for our “Feed the Birds Tree” for the Festival of Trees. We will have a short Story Time with former Preschool teacher Carolyn Jackson-Smith who will then guide us in making pinecone, peanut butter, and birdseed ornaments. Our library “Reada Roomba” will be well-fed that afternoon!

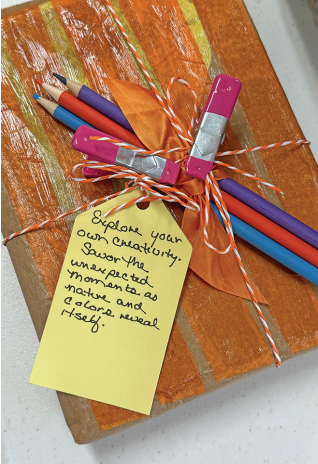

La Belle Provence

World Cultures and Travel Series continues at the Brownsville Library in the Kirk Room on Thursday, November 20, beginning at 7 p.m. by presenter Don Lyon, a former professional photographer and tour guide for more than 20 years. Join us for a pictorial tour of La Belle Provence. Other travel programs include pictorial tours of Turkish Treasure on February 19, 2026 and Austrailia’s Wild Places on March 19, 2026. All programs are free and open to the public.

Annual Book Sale

Each year, we have an Annual Book Sale that fills our Kirk Room! There are books from all walks of life. Books are available for adults, juniors, and children; non-fiction (true) and fiction (made up). Many of these books are donated by our community. A few are books that have had to be pulled from the library collection. Paperbacks are $0.50. Hardback, audio, and video are $1. We will also have a limited amount of creatively (and beautifully) wrapped blind date books, starting at $5 each. Volunteers have wrapped and decorated over 100 books for giving. Each book has a brief description of the book wrapped inside and some extra clues decorating the outside. Our Book Sale will run from Thursday, December 4–13, during normal library hours. Shop early, shop often!

Choose a wrapped “Blind Date” book — each one includes clues to its identity, but no spoilers!

on checking out books for your long holiday weekends! 🌟

SHERRING BOOKS

New Reads Arrive on the Shelves

By Sherri Lemhouse, Brownsville Librarian

Adult Fiction

“Days You Were Mine” by Clare Leslie Hall is a story about Luke & Hannah who have a baby. Luke finally meets his birth mother, Alice, who seems like a dotting grandmother, but is she? This Large Print book was donated by the Brownsville Women’s Study Club

“The Intruder” by Freida McFadden. There is someone at your front door — should you let them in? Another large print thriller donated by the Brownsville Women’s Study Club.

“The Secret Christmas Library” by Jenny Colgan is a heartwarming Christmas romance set in a Scottish castle. Sign me up! This book is also in large print.

“The Secret of Secrets” by Dan Brown is book 6 in the Robert Langdon series. Robert Langdon is traveling in Prague to attend a lecture by a prominent noetic scientist with whom he is in a relationship with. A murder turns the trip into chaos and Katherine has disappeared along with her manuscript.

“Famous” by Blake Crouch is about a man who goes to terrifying extremes to adopt his celebrity doppelganger’s life.

Children’s Fiction

“Five Little Monkeys 5-Minute Stories” by Eileen Christelow has stories that are sure to delight your little monkeys at home!

“Llama Llama Loose

Tooth Drama” by Anna Dewdney. Children love these two books.

Junior Fiction

“The House With No Keys” by Lindsay Currie is book 2 of the Delta Games series — one year later.

“Keeper of the Lost Cities” by Shannon Messenger, Books 1–5 was requested by two people last week. It’s fantastic when adults and young people read the same books — let’s talk!

Young Adult Fiction

“Shut Up, This is Serious” by Carolina Ixta received the Pura Belpre’ Young Adult Award and was a Morris Award Finalist. Belén wants normal stuff and Leti, her super-Catholic nerdy best friend, is pregnant by the boyfriend her parents don’t know about... 🌟

BOOK REVIEW

A Clever Cat and a Cozy Mystery

By Nancy Diltz, Staff Writer

“Telling Tails” (2017) by Sofie Ryan is the fourth book in the “Second Chance Cat Mystery” series. It stands alone, so you do not have to read these books in order. “Telling Tails” starts right off with the mystery — a missing man. He is dead. Or is he? It is light-hearted fun with a cast of quirky characters, a few of whom are spry octogenarians who have formed their own detective business.

“There is something very fun about a series where the supporting cast is as interesting and important as the main character. I was guessing until the very end and loved the wit, humor, and classy banter of Sarah, Elvis (the cat), and the gang of older sleuths! Some memorable one-liners in this one for sure!” posted on Goodreads by Karen, January 8, 2017.

“In this novel, a New York Times bestseller, second-hand shop owner Sarah Grayson and her rescue cat Elvis are caught up in a case of ‘she said, she said’... Now Sarah has nine lives worth of excitement,” according to the Goodreads summary.

I personally found it a fun and quick read — a light murder mystery complete with a missing corpse. It was the perfect pick over a busy Halloween weekend and between World Series games.

Sofie Ryan is a pen name of Canadian author Darlene Ryan, who also writes as Sofie Kelly. Under the name Sofie Ryan, she pens the “Second Chance Cat” mysteries, beginning with “The Whole Cat and Caboodle” (2014). As Sofie Kelly, she writes the popular “Magical Cat” mystery series. Altogether, she has written about 30 books, several of which — under both names — are available in the Brownsville Library collection. 🌟

HALSEY LIBRARY

Collecting Recipes for Community Cookbook

The Halsey Library Committee invites community members to share their favorite recipes for a new community cookbook. Whether it’s a cherished family dish or a modern favorite, all are welcome, and the stories behind the recipes are encouraged.

Submissions can be made online, in person at City Hall or the library, or by emailing library@halseyor.gov. The cookbook project aims to celebrate local flavor and community by featuring recipes from Halsey residents and friends.

For more information, visit the library or contact the Halsey Library Committee.

SAIF Ag Safety Seminars: Local Dates in Corvallis & Eugene

SAIF will host free agricultural safety seminars at two nearby locations this season. Each session runs from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and includes lunch.

- Corvallis: Thursday, Dec. 4
Benton County Event Center & Fairgrounds (110 SW 53rd St.)
- Eugene: Friday, Dec. 5
Lane Events Center (796 W 13th Ave.)

Seminars cover machine guarding and energy control, the farm fire code, respiratory programs, and effective safety committee meetings. Webinars will also be offered in January and March (English and Spanish). Completing a seminar or webinar fulfills OSHA's annual four-hour training requirement for the small-farm inspection exemption (see box). Register at <https://www.saif.com/trainings/agricultural-seminars.html>.

Small-Farm OSHA Exemption (At a Glance)

To qualify for an exemption from random Oregon OSHA inspections, a small agricultural employer must meet all the following requirements.

- No serious accidents in the past two years that resulted from an OSHA rules violation (death, in-patient hospitalization, or less than three days lost time).
- Consultation completed within the last four years, with all hazards corrected.
- Annual training: Employer and principal supervisors complete at least four hours of AG safety/health instruction each year (attending a comprehensive on-site consultation also counts). Keep documentation.

Not exempt from inspections for:

- Agricultural labor housing or field sanitation
- Valid complaints filed with Oregon OSHA
- Fatalities, catastrophes, or accident investigations

Note: SAIF's 2025–26 seminar season includes sessions statewide and 10 Spanish-language seminars; all are open to anyone (not just SAIF policyholders). ☼

TAKING ROOT

Rainy Day Chores and Master Gardener Training

By Donald Lyon, Staff Writer

Rainy days are here again. Now is a good time to service your gas-powered equipment. The owner's manual can be downloaded from the internet if yours is lost. For lawn mowers: fire it up until the oil is warm, then close the fuel valve until the mower runs out of fuel. While the oil is still warm, drain it out. This may involve turning the mower upside down. Drain any gasoline in the tank into a waste container along with the used oil. Add new oil. Clean or replace the air filter. Remove the blade and sharpen it with a grinding wheel or file.

DONALD LYON

End-of-season service for power equipment.

String trimmers, chain saws, and other two-stroke engines that use a gasoline-oil mixture may not have a fuel shutoff valve. Drain most of the fuel out, then start the engine and let it run dry. Letting the device run dry of fuel leaves you with a clean carburetor. Clean or replace the air filter. These are the minimum “winterizing” projects to ensure your gas-powered devices start on the first pull next spring. Gasoline should not be stored over the winter. Pour it into your car's gas tank.

Would you like to advance your gardening skills? There is no better way than to take the OSU Extension Master Gardener training course, which is offered every winter. Contact OSU Extension at 541-967-3871. The coursework combines in-class instruction, field trips, and online learning. The fee is quite reasonable if you promise to continue learning by serving as a volunteer helping at demonstration gardens, help desks at farmers' markets, and working at the OSU Extension office in Tangent. This “continuing education” is the key element that carries you from so-called master gardener to the real thing. I took the training in 2013 and continue learning every day — writing these columns, for example.

CENTRAL LINN GIRLS' SOCCER

Cobra Girls Blank Pleasant Hill 2-0 in First Round of State Championships

By Tony Koontz, Sports Editor

SWEET HOME — The Lady Cobras hosted the Pleasant Hill Billies at Sweet Home High School on Nov. 4 in the first round of the OSAA State Soccer Championships. The artificial turf field allowed both teams to showcase their skills unhampered by recent rain and wind.

Georgia Wahl scored off a corner kick by Maddie Durringer with 10 seconds left in the first half. Isabelle Curtis added a second goal with 12 minutes remaining in the match. Goalie Hazel Huxford completed the shutout for Central Linn.

The Cobras advanced to face the fifth-seeded Aardvarks of Oregon Episcopal on Saturday, Nov. 8, again at Sweet Home High School, with a 5:30 p.m. start time. ☼

Cobra Girls Fall to Oregon Episcopal, Ending Season in State Quarterfinals

By Tony Koontz, Sports Editor

SWEET HOME — Central Linn's girls soccer team ended its playoff run Nov. 8 with a narrow 2-1 loss to Oregon Episcopal in the OSAA 2A State Quarterfinals at Sweet Home High School.

In 2024, the Cobras reached the state title game before falling to powerhouse Catlin Gabel 5-0. Returning players spent this season determined to make another run — and came within one goal of continuing that dream.

The Aardvarks, who Central Linn defeated 1-0 in last year's quarterfinals, found redemption this year. Despite the loss, the Cobras' improvement, heart, and grit were evident throughout the match.

Central Linn will lose six key seniors to graduation, but plans to rebuild with the same determination — and the same dream of winning the OSAA 2A Girls State Championship. ☼

CENTRAL LINN CROSS COUNTRY

Cobra Girls Place 15th at OSAA State Cross Country Championships

By Tony Koontz, Sports Editor

EUGENE — Central Linn's girls cross country team finished 15th overall at the OSAA 3A/2A/1A State Cross Country Championships, held Saturday, Nov. 8, at Lane Community College.

Sophomore Anya Griffith led the Cobras, placing 16th individually with a time of 19:42.24. Teammates Jayne Neal (54), Isabelle Curtis (91), Georgia Wahl (101), Maddie Durringer (105), and Amelia Curtis (111) rounded out the team's scoring effort.

On the boys' side, Jackson Durringer represented Central Linn as the team's lone competitor, placing 37th out of 90 runners in 18:01.28. ☼

Harrisburg Arts Academy Receives State Grant

HARRISBURG — Tri-County Performing Arts Inc., also known as Generations Arts Academy, received $2,368 from the Oregon Arts Commission's Sustaining Arts Program for the fiscal year 2026.

The Harrisburg-based nonprofit is categorized in Group A, which includes organizations with annual expenses under $150,000, located in the South Valley/Mid-Coast region, covering Linn County. The new grant formula offers unrestricted operating support to nonprofit arts groups across the state.

This year, the Oregon Arts Commission awarded $1.76 million to 355 arts organizations across Oregon through the Sustaining Arts Program. Group A awards range from $1,000 to $3,000.

Generations Arts Academy (Tri-County Performing Arts Inc.), through its Generations Theater Company in Junction City, provides performing arts education and community theater opportunities for youth and adults throughout the Tri-County area. Its programs focus on fostering creativity, confidence, and collaboration through live performances and arts education.

Upcoming Shows

The company is currently presenting "Alice@ Wonderland The Musical," a modern retelling of Lewis Carroll's classic tale that brings Alice and her cell phone to a digital-age Wonderland. Performances run Thursdays through Saturdays, Nov. 13–15 and Nov. 20–22 at 7:30 p.m., with several matinees options as well at 210 E. Sixth St. in Junction City. Tickets are available at <https://jcmainstage.com/index.html> or follow them on Facebook at <https://www.facebook.com/GenerationsArtsAcademy>.

Next up is "Somethin' Special for Christmas," running November 28–29 and December 4–6 at 1420 Kalmia St. in Junction City. The holiday show pairs a heartwarming play with a catered dinner from Smokin' Gingers BBQ. Evening shows begin at 7:30 p.m., with Saturday matinees at 2 p.m. ASL interpretation will be available. More information on this show is available at <https://jctheater.com> or <https://www.facebook.com/GTCJC>. 🌟

OSP K-9 Millie Helps Uncover $85,000 in Fentanyl During Linn County Traffic Stop

LINN COUNTY — Three Honduran nationals have been charged with trafficking two kilograms of fentanyl following a traffic stop on Interstate 5 near milepost 216 in Linn County.

According to court documents, on Oct. 30, an Oregon State Police K-9 trooper stopped a Toyota Camry after observing suspicious behavior and a traffic violation. The driver, identified as Oscar Bonilla-Sandoval, 24, was accompanied by Jonathan David Matamoros-Carcamo, 22, in the front passenger seat, and Jorge Adalberto Escoto-Andrade, 34, in the back seat.

During the stop, OSP K-9 Millie alerted to the odor of narcotics along the vehicle's lower passenger door seam. A search revealed a manufactured compartment, or "trap," hidden within the front passenger seat. Inside, troopers found a Smith and Wesson revolver sitting atop approximately two kilograms of suspected fentanyl, wrapped in tape and foil coated with cinnamon — a technique commonly used by traffickers to mask drug scent from canines.

The seized fentanyl has an estimated street value of $85,000. Officers also confiscated approximately $10,000 in bundled cash from Matamoros-Carcamo and about $3,000 from Escoto-Andrade.

The three suspects were taken into custody and appeared before a federal magistrate judge in Eugene on Oct. 31. They were ordered detained pending further court proceedings. Each faces federal charges of conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute, and possession with intent to distribute, more than 400 grams of fentanyl.

The case is being investigated by the Drug Enforcement Administration, Oregon State Police, and the Springfield Police Department, and is being prosecuted by Assistant U. S. Attorney Joseph Huynh.

A criminal complaint is only an accusation of a crime, and a defendant is presumed innocent unless and until proven guilty.

Fentanyl is a synthetic opioid up to 100 times stronger than morphine and 50 times stronger than heroin. As little as two milligrams (just a few grains) can be fatal. The availability of illicit fentanyl has driven a sharp rise in overdose deaths across Oregon.

If you or someone you know is struggling with addiction, call the Lines for Life substance abuse helpline at 1-800-923-4357 or visit <https://www.linesforlife.org> for 24-hour support. You can also text "RecoveryNow" to 839863 2–6 p.m. daily. 🌟

County Commissioners Vote to Approve Coffin Butte Landfill Expansion

By Jeff Brown, Staff Writer

Final decision scheduled for Nov. 17 after a 2–1 vote in favor of the project

After months of hearings and public debate, the Benton County Board of Commissioners voted 2–1 on Nov. 4 to approve the long-contested expansion of the Coffin Butte Landfill north of Corvallis. The vote clears the way for Republic Services, which operates the site, to move closer to adding new disposal capacity that would extend the landfill's lifespan by several decades. The Board is expected to adopt its final written findings and decision on Monday, Nov. 17.

The expansion proposal reached the Board after Republic Services appealed the Benton County Planning Commission's decision to deny the project earlier this year. Commissioners considered testimony from that hearing along with new evidence submitted during the appeal process.

Opponents argue the expansion will worsen odors, truck traffic, and noise for nearby residents, while keeping Benton County dependent on waste imports from other regions. Supporters say it is necessary to maintain disposal capacity for western Oregon and contend that the project's design updates will reduce environmental impacts.

With county approval nearly finalized, Republic Services will next move into detailed design and seek final permits from the Oregon Department of Environmental Quality. The expansion area, located south of Coffin Butte Road, includes new disposal cells, updated methane-gas and storm-water systems, and upgraded access roads.

County staff will oversee compliance with conditions related to odor, leachate, and air-quality monitoring and will continue community engagement through the Coffin Butte Landfill Community Advisory Committee. The DEQ will conduct its own review before construction begins.

The Board's 2–1 vote marks a major turning point in one of Benton County's most debated land-use issues. Even with the expansion's approval pending final adoption, both supporters and opponents say discussions about long-term waste management and environmental stewardship are far from over. 🌟

SHERIFF'S REPORT

Information in the Sheriff's Report is provided by The Linn County Sheriff's Daily Media Log of Dispatched Calls and Cases. Incident details may be limited or delayed depending on agency availability prior to our weekly publication deadline. Addresses typically reflect the location of the incident or arrest, though in some cases they may indicate the origin of the call.

An individual's arrest or citation reported here does not imply guilt. Guilt or innocence is determined only through the judicial process.

The following is a list of abbreviations that may appear in our log reports: LCSO (Linn County Sheriff's Office); OSP (Oregon State Police); LCCC (Linn County Circuit Court); LCJC (Linn County Justice Court); AMC (Albany Municipal Court); FTA (failure to appear); FTC (failure to comply). A roman numeral listed after a charge means that the charge is that numbered-degree: theft I (first-degree theft).

Monday, November 3

12:30 a.m. — Emily Barker, 33, of Eugene was issued citations for driving uninsured and driving with a suspended license in the 300 block of N 3rd St, Harrisburg.

11:29 a.m. — Caller reported of a theft that had occurred on Oct. 30 in the 32900 block of Diamond Hill Dr, Harrisburg. Investigation ongoing, Report Pending.

12:16 p.m. — LCSO Civil Division conducted an eviction lockout in the 700 block of Kay Ave, Brownsville. The property was posted and turned over to the lawful representative.

2:41 p.m. — Deputy responded to a report of threats from a juvenile near Harrisburg at the 32900 block of Diamond Hill Dr and investigated possible crimes. Report Pending.
